NICKNAME

OPERATIONS

A new organization was authorized for the Kansas Air National Guard to be located in Wichita, Kansas. Alongside the 127th Fighter Bomber Squadron, effective 26 May 1953.

This new organization was designated the 137th Maintenance and Supply Group, consisting of the 137th Maintenance Squadron, 137th Supply Squadron, and the 137th Motor Vehicle Squadron. Prior to receiving federal recognition of this new group for Kansas, the group was part of the Oklahoma Air National Guard and served on active duty during the Korean emergency as a part of the 137th Fighter Bomber Wing.

The 137th Maintenance and Supply Group was organized from a nucleus of 6 Officers and 67 Airmen and was commanded by Maj Carl L. Boggs. After attaining strength of 20 officers and 276 Airmen the primary mission of the group was to establish priorities for allocation of maintenance, supplies and transportation to the 137th Fighter Bomber Wing, based at Will Rogers Field, Oklahoma.
