EMBLEM

Sable, issuing from a demi-sphere in base Azure, gridlined Or, a stylized flame and Phoenix rising, wings displayed Gules, both shaded Tenné and of the third, all within a diminished bordure Yellow. Attached below the shield, a White scroll edged with a narrow Yellow border and inscribed "194TH REGIONAL SUPPORT WING" in Blue letters. SIGNIFICANCE: Ultramarine blue and Air Force yellow are the Air Force colors. Blue alludes to the sky, the primary theater of Air Force operations. Yellow refers to the sun and the excellence required of Air Force personnel. The Phoenix represents rebirth and change, the constant flexibility needed in an ever changing Air Force, as well as the diversity of missions within the Wing. The Phoenix is rising out of the globe, which represents the unit's worldwide mission. The Phoenix and globe sit on a field of black, representing cyberspace, the unit's final theater of operations.

NICKNAME

OPERATIONS

The Washington Air National Guard's 194th Regional Support Wing is headquartered at Camp Murray and consists of over 1,000 citizen airmen. Their mission sets involve both kinetic and non-kinetic operations and include sensitive missions that reside in the cyber domain. The 194th's cutting edge capabilities are well-suited to the threats our nation faces in the 21st Century.

Officially formed in 2006, the 194th Regional Support Wing was the Air National Guard's first-ever non-flying operational wing and it is currently the Guard's newest wing. Consisting of 1,012 dedicated Airmen serving the nation and Washington State, the 194 RSW provides a diverse array of transformational capabilities that are critical to fighting and winning in overseas contingency operations around the world, and has a multitude of elite and distinctive career options. As Washington Air National Guardsmen, we are citizen-Airmen who have the unique opportunity to both defend our freedom overseas and to provide safety and security in any emergency that may arise back home.
