Reservists of the 920th Rescue Wing, Patrick AFB, Fla., on Feb. 13 took part in an exercise at Cape Canaveral AFS, Fla. Helicopter crews from the wing's 310th Rescue Squadron provided security for a space shuttle launch, while the 308th Rescue Squadron stood by to rescue and provide medical care to astronauts if a shuttle veered off a runway during landings. In the exercise, Pave

Hawk helicopters airlifted NASA firefighters and USAF pararescuers to a remote training site to practice egress attempts and medical skills. Airmen with the 45th Space Wing at Patrick also participated in the exercise. 2007
