OPERATIONS

The 918th Communications Flight of the 445th Military Airlift Wing serves Dobbins AFB by assuming full responsibility for Base Communications including radio, telephone and teletype maintenance for the Wing and its subordinate units. This unit, while functioning within the framework of the 445th MAW, is trained and administered by the 1926-1 Communications

Detachment, Air Force Communications Service (AFCS) which would become the gaining command in the event of activation. Reservists in the flight come from as far as Nashville and Tullahoma, Tenn. for training weekends. Such specific duties as serving at the Dobbins PBX switchboard, assisting in the operation of the computerized Base Communications Center and maintenance of all ground communications equipment on the base busy the 21 enlisted men and two officers in the unit. The men of the 918th Communications Flight assure that we here at Dobbins can communicate with each other and with our sister bases both at home and abroad.
