OPERATIONS

After the US entered the war the group searched for enemy U-boats and covered friendly convoys off the east coast of the US. Served with First AF and later with AAF Antisubmarine Command.

11/30/2007 Units supporting Joint Task Force-Support Forces Antarctica, Operation Deep Freeze, have a new designation and shield. As a standing JTF, the organization wanted to be represented by a unit designation that was connected to 13th Air Force, the JTF lead, and could be used continuously. The answer was found in the 13th Air Expeditionary Group which was active during World War II as part of 13th Air Force. The 13th AEG was re-activated by 13th AF as the air component of JTF-SFA. The 13th AEG commander is dualhatted as the deputy commander, JTF-SFA. The 13 AEG was re-activated by Air Mobility Command as the air component of Joint Task Force-Support Forces Antarctica (JTF-SFA). The 13 AEG commander is dual hatted as the deputy commander, JTF-SFA.
