Shield: Per fess azure and gules, a fess nebule or.

Crest: On a wreath of the colors (or and azure) a sun in splendor proper, radiating from the center thereof thirteen darts gules.

The wing emblem is a shield bearing the colors of the wing: blue, gold, and red. The partition line of the fess is nebula - the heraldic symbol for clouds.

The insignia represents the "Pursuit Attack"—any direction in three dimensions (13 darts) from out of the blinding sun (sun buret) or through the clouds (cloud roll)—superimposed on the Group Shield which unites the power of the four squadrons of the group, 55th (blue) 77th (red), 79th (gold) Pursuit Squadrons, and Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron (Blue and Gold). Approved on 18 Dec 1934 for Group and 31 Oct 1951 for Wing

NICKNAME

Trained to maintain proficiency as a tactical fighter unit, 1947-1950. Provided P-51 training for Turkish officers, Feb-Apr 1948.

Wing headquarters not operational, 25 Apr-10 Oct 1951.

Moved to England in May 1952 with a mission of maintaining proficiency for tactical operations with conventional and nuclear weapons in support of North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) operations in the European area.

The 20th Fighter Bomber Wing established an operational detachment at Wheelus AB, Libya in February 1958. The flying squadrons dispersed on a monthly rotational basis to RAF Alconbury, RAF Woodbridge, and Nouasseur AB, Morocco, due to a RAF Wethersfield runway closure from May to August, 1958.

The wing first established its Blast Off (later named Victor Alert) capability in July, 1958. The first mobility plan was initiated on 1 January 1959. A year-round weapons training detachment was established at Wheelus AB, Libya, for monthly squadron rotations. Pilot survival and ski training began in Norway in February, 1959.

A military coup in Libya forced the closure of Wheelus AB in September 1969 and initiation of 20th TFW weapons training detachment operations at Torrejon AB, Spain in November, 1969. Detachment 1, 20th Tactical Fighter Wing was established at RAF Upper Heyford on 10 December 1969. All three flying squadrons rotated to Zaragoza, Spain for weapons training from January to March 1970. Headquarters, 20th Tactical Fighter Wing relocated from RAF Wethersfield to RAF Upper Heyford on 1 June 1970. For the first time since it left Virginia in 1952, all three of its flying squadrons were united on one base. Less than three months later, the wing began converting to a new aircraft the F-111E. On 12 September 1970, the first two F-111Es arrived at RAF Upper Heyford. The last of the 20th's F-100s transferred to the Air National Guard on 12 February 1971 and in November of that year the wing's F-111s were declared operationally ready.

Operations shifted to RAF Greenham Common from May to August, 1976, due to runway repairs at Upper Heyford.

Added electronic combat mission in 1983. Participated in numerous tactical and electronic countermeasure exercises at many operating locations with other USAF and Allied organizations.

On 14 April 1986, 5 EF-111As and 20 F-111Es took off from RAF Upper Heyford. They were used as an airborne reserve for the F-111Fs of the 48th TFW, RAF Lakenheath. Three EF-111s (two were spares and turned back) formed up with the 48th's F-111Fs and provided electronic defense during the attack on Tripoli.

The 20th TFW had aircraft deployed to Incirlik AB, Turkey for a Weapons Training Deployment in August 1990, when Iraq invaded Kuwait and Desert Shield started. As the start of the air campaign neared, the wing reinforced its presence as all US aircraft at Incirlik were incorporated into the 7440th Wing (Provisional), Operation Proven Force, for the duration of the war. The wing also deployed four 42nd ECS EF-111As and 80 personnel to Taif, Saudi Arabia, to support Operation Desert Storm.

20th TFW aircrews participated in the NATO Central Enterprise '91 exercise from 10 - 14 June 1991. Wing aircrews flew in support of Elder Joust from 10 - 12 September 1991.

Moved without personnel and equipment from England to South Carolina on 1 Jan 1994, inheriting the personnel and equipment of the 363 Fighter Wing.

Took part in training exercises and deployed squadrons periodically to Southwest Asia on rotation to enforce no-fly zones over Iraq during the 1990s.

In 1999, wing elements took part in the Air War over Serbia.
