Officials at Schriever AFB, Colo., activated the 21st Medical Squadron during a ceremony. The squadron, which resides under the 21st Medical Group, will provide comprehensive medical care to more than 5,000 beneficiaries annually. More than 50 officers, enlisted personnel, and civilians will staff the unit, which activated on June 22. "I have no doubt this newly minted squadron will continue to uphold 21st Medical Group's tradition of excellence, while expertly and professionally serving the health care needs of Schriever Air Force Base," said Col. Chris Crawford, commander of the 21st Space Wing, which is headquartered at Peterson AFB, Colo. The squadron "means our 520 space operators have a very efficient way of getting medically cleared to do their jobs," said Col. James Ross Schriever's 50th SW commander. 2012
