OPERATIONS

1960 Maiden Air Base, Missouri. With pilot production decreasing, the ATC commander suggested closing Malden, a contract flying training base, in early 1959. It wasn't until late

December that Headquarters USAF approved the ATC request. The last primary class graduated on 29 June 1960, and one day later ATC terminated its training contract. On 26 July the command discontinued the 3305th Pilot Training Group (Contract Primary). That left ATC with five contract primary schools still in operation; ATC released Maiden on 1 September.
