EMBLEM

6 Station Complement Squadron, Special emblem depicts an eagle with wings partially folded, embracing a shield bearing the name of the organization, standing on a plaque inscribed with the type of squadron. The colors are those of the American National emblem with the golden eagle of the American Seal and stand for much the same for the squadron as they do the United States as a nation. The dropped wings of the eagle across the corners of the shield mean that although the squadron is not a combat unit, the squadron stands ready to assist those that are, whenever and wherever needed.
