The RB-45Cs days at Yokota were numbered once Martin RB-57s and North American RF-100s began arriving, and a new formation, the 6021st Reconnaissance Squadron, 6007th Reconnaissance Group (Composite), was organized. Sometime in the fall of 1956, the four veteran Tornados still on station were flown back to San Bernadino for final interment and a rendezvous with the welder's torch.
