OPERATIONS

For air-to-air gunnery and rocketry training, radar reflecting targets were towed by B-57Es of the 7235 Support Squadron, which also operated F-100s as chase aircraft for the interceptors under training. Should a fighter's radar lock on to the Tug and not the target, the order to break off was given by the chase pilot. When the B-57s were retired from service, target towing was taken over by the F-100s.
