EMBLEM

The colors blue and golden yellow are representative of the Air Force. The V-shaped design is stylized to represent flight connecting through logistics represented by the gear. The red lightning bolts are symbolic of readiness and Air Force Communications Command. The gear with the star and red disc is from the historical shoulder insignia, approved 16 June 1947, and is symbolic of the technical air missions performed by the Air Force Logistics Command in service to the advancement of air power for our country's freedom.
