EMBLEM

Per fess wavy azure and gules fimbriated argent, in base a missile palewise argent between in dexter on a background of the third framed of the first a man operating a television camera

cable connected to a monitor of the third, and in sinister an atomic explosion of the last, in chief overall a stylized winged torch or inflamed proper all within a diminished bordure of the third. SIGNIFICANCE: The emblem portrays the mission of the Center as a member of the ATC represented by the ATC Torch of Knowledge and the USAF represented by the Air Force colors, ultramarine blue and golden yellow. Against a field of red for courage, a television camera symbolizes our modern training methods, a missile indicates the training conducted by the Department of Missiles, and the atomic blast symbolizes the Department of Weapons and Bomber Training. The emblem bears the national colors, red, white, and blue, as an indication of the patriotism of the personnel. (Approved, 15 May 1962)
